
	And – Begin with right, loose curved 5 hand in front of left side of chest, palm facing self and fingers pointing to left. (Thumb is held down behind fingers, but not so far down that it’s touching the palm.) Move the hand across to the right side of the chest and, as you move it, close the fingers together. The ending handshape will look similar to a flattened O, but slightly more rounded, fingers pointing left. This ending position is referred to as the “and hand.” (See Basic Handshapes chart.)
		Bad / naughty – Start with the right open hand in front of the lips, palm facing self (fingertips pointing upward at a slight angle). In one smooth, deliberate movement, take hand from the mouth, rotate palm to the left, and push it down, at least as far as the center of your chest. Palm ends facing down. Think of removing something distasteful from the mouth. Sign can be made with two hands. In that case, right hand does the same movement, and left open hand is held flat and palm facing up to stop the right hand as it’s coming down.
		Excuse me. / to forgive – Hold left open hand (palm facing up and fingers angled to the right) in front of chest. Brush fingertips of the right bent B hand, palm facing in, down the lower half of the open upturned palm of the left hand, two times. Fingers brush from heel of hand to just off fingertips. Alternate: Sign is also frequently made using open right hand rather than a bent B.
		Good – Start with the right open hand in front of the lips, palm facing self (fingertips pointing upward at a slight diagonal to the left). Move hand out from the mouth and down until back of right hand hits palm of left hand, which should be held high in front of left side of chest with open hand angled in, palm facing your face, fingertips facing right.
		Goodbye – Natural gesture made when leaving: hold up right open hand, palm facing forward, bend and unbend the four fingers (together) a couple times.
